RED + NOTES

"I'm too busy."

"Too busy to do what?"
"Why, sewing for the Red Cross; my home duties take all my time and strength."

"Oh, yes! Well, you do have a good many home cares that must tax your strength, but, let me see, didn't you go to that whist party that took all one afternoon? Got tired, too, didn't you? Pretty close work, but that was fun of course. Couldn't you have had just as much fun if the same bunch of women had got together, all of you working for the afternoon on garments for those less favored than you? You could still have visited and had a good time, the hours would have passed pleasantly and in the time that you spent playing whist you could have accomplished a good deal, for those who have made the pinafors that are on hand now tell us two hours will complete one. But you say, 'I don't play whist; that doesn't hit me.' Perhaps not, but let me see! How many hours have you spent at the movies in the last month, since the last quota of garments came, allowing two and one-half hours for each show? Couldn't you have worked in some of those pinafors along during the day before you went to the movies? And that day you just ran into a neighbor's for a minute, got to talking and before you knew it an hour or more had passed. Wouldn't it have been fine if you had had some article you could have taken in and worked on while you were there that would have helped out the local branch of the Red Cross? You wouldn't have minded the work and someone would have reaped a benefit, when probably all that resulted was a little (or much) gossip about the neighbors. We all think we are busy when we are asked to do something that does not appeal to us, but find that we have an abundance of time when invited for pleasure."

That is one side of the picture. Here's the other.

There are still 200 pinafors at the Red Cross rooms waiting to be made. This shows a decided lack of interest in the work. Now, ladies, make a special effort to push this work along. Don't wait for someone else, but see that you find your way to do your share. It can be done and certainly should be.

Close your eyes and imagine yourself in the place of one of the refugees for a moment. Home gone, all the male members of your family gone, many of them forever, land devastated, everything of value stripped from the town by the Huns, houses destroyed, very little clothing left and knowing that in your distress an appeal had been made to the land across the seas, the great United States, known as a friend to all and especially to the helpless. Then imagine that you learned in some way that the women in that land, of whom you had heard so much while the war was being waged, how they had worked for the boys in the service, had become tired and selfish, how that since it is not their boy that is in need they are taking a vacation from Red Cross work. And in the meantime you were trying to hold together what of the family remained and do your best to keep up your courage.

It is for these people, trying to do their best with what they have to do with, that the Red Cross is working since hostilities have ceased, but from reports from heads of departments, there is a lack of interest. What can be done to increase it?

Last week an appeal was made from the Barre branch for each woman to take just one pinafor home and complete it before March 1. The appeal was not answered. Two hundred pinafors still remain.

If you have a fellow feeling for the unfortunate ones across the seas, if you are thankful that the fighting on the battle fronts has ceased, if you are willing to do your bit towards the work of reconstruction, call at the sewing room on any Monday, Wednesday or Friday, from 2 to 5 p. m., and talk the matter over with those in charge of the work. You will then be joining the noble army of L. I. C. W. (Local Red Cross workers) of the United States.

We shall look for you to-morrow.

"PRINCESS PAT" MARRIED.

Commander Alexander R. M. Ramsay Takes Her as Bride.

London, Feb. 27.—Princess Patricia of Connaught and Commander Alexander R. M. Ramsay, R. N., were married at Westminster abbey this noon.

The ceremony was performed by the archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the dean of Westminster and other noted ecclesiastics in the presence of King George and Queen Mary and a great assemblage of members of the royal family, distinguished officials of the British and foreign governments, and friends and visitors from abroad. Ambassador and Mrs. John W. Davis were present. The prince of Wales made a special visit from the continent to attend the ceremony.

In the fashionable audience in the great nave of the abbey were found for a number of the many friends of the princess among the plain people, and also representatives of charitable organizations in which she was interested.

The bride entered the abbey by the west door, which is used only on occasions of importance. Her gown was of a white brocade panne over silver lace, the outer gown being caught up with silver lacy knots. She carried a bouquet presented by the "Princess Pat" Canadian regiment and tied with the regimental colors.

The procession was led by a choir, followed by the ushers. Then came Princess Patricia, with her father. They were followed by the earl of MacDuff, eldest son of the duchess of Fife, and the Honorable Simon Ramsay, as pages, bearing the princess' train. Then came Lady Joan Ramsay with Princess Ingrid of Sweden, Lady In Ramsay with Lady May Cambridge, Princess Maud with Princess Mary, and Lady Helena Cambridge with Lady Victoria Cambridge.

The bride was given away by her father. After the ceremony the register was signed in the chapel of Edward the Confessor. Then, as the bridal couple proceeded toward the door, the Mendelssohn wedding march was played. A procession of the royal family and peers and peeresses followed, led by the duke of Connaught and Queen Mary, King George and Queen Mother Alexandra, and former King Manuel of Portugal and his wife, who was formerly Princess Augustine Victoria of Hohenzollern.

A guard of honor of the "Princess Pat" regiment was stationed at the doors, sharing honors with seamen from H. M. S. George V.

Court mourning over the death of Prince John was waived for the occasion. The wedding presents, which are still arriving, number nearly 700 and range from homely market baskets to priceless diamonds. Princess Patricia presented Commander Ramsay a bust of herself, while his gift to the bride was a Chinese lacquered cabinet.
